1 Verify expiration date, value of certificate, and any restrictions (i.e. admit one, admit two, specific movie, performance or studio). If the certificate is expired, politely alert the customer to the date printed on the certificate and decline acceptance.

2 Scan or enter the unique 16-digit credit card number and your theater's admission price into your Point of Sale system like any credit card. Do not enter in an amount greater than your admission price.

Hollywood Movie Money Certificates must be used in a single transaction. They are one-time use.

Note: If your Point of Sale System prompts you, please enter the EXPIRATION DATE (month and year), ADDRESS, ZIP CODE and SECURITY CODE printed on the certificate. You will be paid instantly through your credit card processor. Once processed, follow your theater's internal procedures for redeemed certificates.

If the maximum value of the certificate is less than your admission price, collect the difference from the customer FIRST and process the virtual card SECOND, treating the transaction as a split tender.
